Passenger Numbers Soar at Ford Airport

Recently-released passenger figures for Gerald R. Ford International Airport reveal significant upturns in passenger activity through May 2010.

For the month of May, the Airport posted a 26.1% increase in passenger traffic compared to May 2009.

Through the first five months of this year, passenger activity at Ford International surpassed 2009 figures by 15.5% for the same period.

Airport officials credit the recent additions of new airline service, new destinations, lower fares, and an increase in available seats as among the factors contributing to the rise in passenger activity.
